

CDPnews

Carnivore Damage Prevention

CALL FOR SUBMISSIONS

Carnivore Damage Prevention News is a professional newsletter focused on the complex challenges presented by the coexistence of large carnivores and human activities worldwide.

Since its launch in 2000, CDPnews has acted as a forum to raise awareness of practical solutions, to facilitate collaboration among researchers, policy makers, agricultural consultants, hunters and farmers and to improve knowledge exchange between countries and across the boundaries of traditional disciplines.

For the next period 2023–2026 two issues of CDPnews will be published per year, financed by WWF Switzerland and WWF Germany.

We invite submissions from anyone with experience or expertise in the field of carnivore damage prevention anywhere in the world. Articles considered for publication range from the personal perspectives of practitioners through reviews of best practice or testing of new tools and techniques to presentation of projects and results of original research.

Coordinator
Daniel Mettler
daniel.mettler@agridea.ch

Chief Editor
Robin Rigg
info@slovakwildlife.org

Detailed guidelines for authors are available on our website:
www.cdpnews.net

To submit an article or discuss ideas, please contact:
info@cdpnews.net

